DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

This is one of the nicest frame barns in the county, and it epitomizes the best traits of a German-influenced barn. The building sits on a high fieldstone foundation, with patterned rubble construction and quoin blocks at the corners. Much of the east wall has been replaced with cinderblock, however.

The upper stories are sheathed with vertical, weathered-pine siding and feature several tiers of round-headed, louvered vents. The gable-ends have circular louvered vents.

Across the road from the barn is a two-story, three-bay farmhouse, with a one-story open porch. There are barge-boards along the center and end gables. There is a two-story wing. Present siding is asbestos shingle.
